Documentation

We are using the RestController to transmit information between the database and the frontend page.

We are also using SpringSecurity to protect the endpoints of our application so only registered user can get data and users to have access only to the data that their role lets them.

Database diagram:

Deployment diagram: